serial key.Q: Reasons for DBT Trading I am interested to hear why people choose to trade with DBT rather than xCurrency. I have traded Bitcoin Cash (BCH) for 1 xCurrency (XUSC) for the past several weeks, but have been reconsidering, and now thinking about what are the reasons for trading with xCurrency and why not DBT. (Disclaimer: I do have DBT) A: DigiByte is a fork of Bytecoin and has a much smaller network than XCurrency, DBT, and Bitcoin Cash. All three of these projects are mined from block rewards on the Bitcoin network. While not having a large network this means that it's harder to generate DBT. This has also lead to very little adoption and spreading of the network. To get a DBT is easier than to get a XC or a BCH. However once you get one you have to come through either a large pool or mining yourself. On September 22nd, 2018, Stratis announced the release of its beta version of Stratis Live. Stratus Live is a free and open source version of the Stratis Platform in order to accelerate the development of real-world applications using the Stratis Blockchain. This software is free to download and use! The Stratis Live Beta will be available for Windows, Mac OS and Linux and, while Stratis Live is in beta, users can expect the following: The ability to create, configure, deploy and maintain a Stratis Live application, the ability to create basic-use applications and the platform for the future of full-stack application development and deployment. As with every beta version of any software, there are bound to be a number of bugs and issues reported, and Stratis is committed to quickly address any issues that are reported and provide an even better experience.
