Cropping The best way to crop photos is to quickly drag a rectangular or elliptical marquee around a portion of the image and click the crop tool. You can then drag the crop area to any part of the image. Figure 4-9 shows an image that I cropped in Elements using the Crop tool. You can make similar crop selections using the cropping tool in Photoshop, but Elements crops can be much smaller than Photoshop ones. Figure 4-10 shows a smaller crop selection made in Photoshop. FIGURE 4-9: Use the Crop tool to crop a photo using one click. FIGURE 4-10: Another example of using the Crop tool. To lock in a crop area, press Ctrl+T.

The federal Liberals are demanding sweeping changes to the Financial Transaction Tax (FTT) law after the Senate revealed new costs that will be borne by Canadians and potential moves to increase some taxes. The latest costs were reported by the Senate and the opposition parties late Wednesday, amid new claims that the governing party is ignoring limits on what it can do to change the FTT before it is implemented in 2020, once the Conservatives take power. The cost is expected to be about $1.5 billion next year, and will be passed onto Canadians, said the Liberal Senate leader, Dominic LeBlanc. "Our FTT is a huge tax on Canadians and Canadian businesses. That's why we have to do something about it. We have to fix it, we have to make it better and we're going to," he told reporters. The Liberal proposal to make sweeping changes to the tax was shared with the opposition parties on Wednesday, according to people familiar with the discussions. The opposition parties are demanding that the government keep the tax in place at its current level — 6.6 per cent — for longer to help prepare and offset the effects of the roughly $80 billion FTT, which requires businesses to pay a small fee based on every financial transaction. The Conservatives have suggested the FTT could be passed in December, but Ottawa has said it has no timeline for implementation. Government to try to unwind changes In response to the new costs, the Conservatives have been pushing the Senate to start an audit into the FTT and release more details. Conservative Senate leader Claude Carignan said the government has been slow to provide answers about what changes are on the table, but they will try to unwind any changes now that the Senate is looking at it. "The Senate has no business doing audits. It has no business doing an inquiry. This is not about the Senate," said Carignan. "This is about transparency." LeBlanc and Finance Minister Bill Morneau have said the government has not decided on whether to cap the cost of the FTT or to adjust it for inflation, and has not officially provided documents that will cost taxpayers. Senators look for a better tax system Senators are looking at ways to better manage the FTT, which came into effect in 2015 and levies a flat-rate 2 per cent tax on stock trades, plus a similar fee on currency trades and derivatives, collectively known as G-S

Q: SQL Reporting Services 2016 error Connection String I tried to install SQL Reporting Services 2016 (16.0.4000.170) on my development machine but got an error on install process: Installing package: 'Microsoft SQL Server Reporting Services 2008 R2 Native' on server Productivity-SQL2014RS did not succeed. A connection was successfully established to MSSQLSERVER, but a login page cannot be displayed. Additional information may be available by searching Microsoft Knowledge Base articles. I did all the correct things like the answer from here: Close all SSRS instances on the server Stop all Reporting Services services Delete the ReportServer folder on the SQL Server Data Backup the original ReportServer folder on the SQL Server Data Install the SSRS on the new folder on the SQL Server Data Restart the SQL Server Reporting Services Services The error remained, so I tried to turn off firewall, other than that, nothing I did helps. A: I found the answer to the problem. I used the Advanced mode of the GUI to install the SSRS and typed the address to the databases and username. But, the user I entered was the domain user. By default, SSRS set up a separate user for the administrative access on SQL Report Server. So, the user that I used in the GUI was not the user that used for the Report Server. Fortunately, I could avoid the error by having the user I used previously. From roofing the theater stage to repairing the fountains at Martin Luther King Jr. Plaza, construction of the new Berkeley High School has been going full-steam ahead since the 2012-13 school year. "Berkeley High School will be the first school in Berkeley to move from being a single-sex school to a co-ed school," Principal Nicole Martinez said in 2012, after the new school was unveiled to community members. "That's the beautiful irony of it. Berkeley High School was one of the first co-ed schools in Berkeley, actually. We're bringing that to the forefront of our campus again." On
